NAME OF EVENT: ERGONOMICS IN DENTAL SURGERY
DATE OF EVENT: FEBRUARY 23,24,25,26,27-2021
COURSE DIRECTOR: Dr.M. JAMES ANTONY BHAGAT MDS
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, DEPARTMENT OF OMFS
COURSE CO-ORDINATOR: Dr.B. NATHIYA MDS, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR DEPARTMENT OF OMFS

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS:

Importance of ergonomics in day to day practice Proper positioning of patient and dentist Four handed dentistry and its Importance Muscle strengthening and stretching exercises

OBJECTIVES OF THE COURSE

To study methods and techniques for job and workstation evaluation and thus enable students to identify potential hazards that contribute to work-related musculoskeletal disorders

To understand how to design workspaces for a diverse work population.

To learn about Good Posture, Positioning and Periodic Stretching

To provide students with practical muscle exercise training experience using some of the methodologies

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Ergonomics is the science of designing the job to fit the worker, rather than physically forcing the worker's body to fit the job. Many dentists are affected with chronic neck and back pain in various stages of their career. This course will provide students with an understanding of how poor work design can lead to musculoskeletal injuries. This course will provide you with the skills and abilities to identify tools, equipment and workstations that are designed with good ergonomic principles. Few basic muscle strengthening exercises will be taught to the participants for effective muscle strengthening.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Importance of ergonomics in day to day practice
- Proper positioning of patient and dentist
- Four hand dentistry and its importance
- Muscle strengthening exercises

COURSE OUTLINE

In this course importance of posture maintenance during dental procedure by the operator will be taught. Clinical sessions explaining the doctor and patient positioning will be discussed for clinical correlation by the students.

COURSE CONTENTS

1. Importance of posture maintenance
Hands on Training, Hands on training will be provided in minimum of 5 cases.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Ergonomic posture maintenance has become a prime importance especially for dentist due to the occupational hazard resulting in severe neck and back pain which can hamper once professional life. Many dentists are affected with chronic neck and back pain in various stages of their career. In this course the importance of maintaining a proper operating posture and finding out the root cause of these chronic pain will be discussed. Few basic muscle strengthening exercises will be taught to the participants for effective muscle strengthening.

ETHICS IN HEALTH CARE RESEARCH

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Learn everything Healthcare research investigators need to know about research ethics

Healthcare research should never come at the price of subjects' health, privacy, or other rights. This course offers practical insights, to make sure that it never does.

The course gives you an excellent foundation in research ethics, explaining the basic principles of ethical research, and giving you the opportunity into both the pros and cons of using human subjects.

Informed consent, participant selection, risk-benefit analysis, confidentiality, scientific rigour, and data integrity are all covered in the materials.

You'll also explore how conflicts of interest and adverse events are handled. This knowledge will prepare you to conduct effective, ethical research in any situation.

LEARNING OUTCOME

The primary goal of the program is to provide students with the following core learning outcomes

- Apply the basic principles of research ethics.
- Assess and manage the risks of research to human subjects.
- Apply the principles of informed consent.
- Explain the importance of responsible management of research data.
- Explain the concept of conflict of interests in research.
- Describe the responsibilities of the research ethics committee.

ABOUT THE COURSE

Orthodontic appliances are the devices which transmit forces to individual teeth or maxillofacial skeletal units to bring the changes within the bone with or without tooth movement which will help to achieve the treatment goals of functional efficiency, structural balance and esthetic harmony.

Orthodontic appliances are divided into three main groups:

- A) Removable appliance
- B) Removable-Fixed appliance
- C) Fixed appliance

Removable Orthodontic appliances hold a unique place in the orthodontist's armamentarium. The use of removable appliances still varies between clinicians, but it is possible to achieve adequate occlusal improvement when suitable cases are chosen. Simple tipping movements and few malocclusions will fall into this category.

This course provides information related to construction of the orthodontic appliance and also gives the basic technical knowledge and manual skills to fabricate various removable appliances according to the clinical requirement and laboratory criteria.

Orthodontic appliance fabrication and management Course is certificate course offered by Adhiparasakthi Dental College & Hospital. It comprises of 4-day course for a period of 30 hrs.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVE

The program comprises of didactic lectures and hands on sessions related to Orthodontic appliance fabrication and management. At the end of the course delegates can gain knowledge on various laboratory steps involved in Orthodontic appliance fabrication such as wire bending, construction of the acrylic base plate and clinical management.

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

Introduction, Orthodontic appliance types, indications, components parts, base plate fabrication, information and instructions for the patient after insertion of removable appliances.

Course Outcome

In this course importance of counselling and communicating with the patient was emphasized. Communicating to patient is an art which needs to be developed by a Dental Surgeon. Effective counselling and communication breaks the barrier between the doctor and the patient, which greatly helps in better treatment outcome.

Students can maintain a good rapport with patients and communicate effectively explaining the benefits and when they need to be cautious in dealing with troublesome patients.

Understanding the patients well and delivering the treatment as promised.

ABOUT THE COURSE

You need to establish yourself as a professional after completing dental college. Since most new dentists don't start out owning their own practice, you need to know how to begin your career in order for you to turn your dream into a working reality.

It has been observed that almost three-quarters of all dentists choose to become solo business owners. We offer a few practice management topics and also non-clinical aspects of running your practice.

We provide a plethora of valuable resources to meet the educational, networking, clinical, professional issues and practice management, continuing education courses, as well as leadership development programmes. The course is scheduled for 4 days (30 hrs) consists of detailed guidance on setting up dental office & practice management.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVE

The program consists of lectures along with virtual tour to dental clinics covering mandatory checklist for setting up dental clinic including infrastructure, equipment's, staffs, and management of patient and finance. At the end of course, delegates should have clear ideas in dental clinic set up and practice management.

COURSE OUTCOME

The candidates should be aware of the armamentarium needed for setting up the dental clinic. The candidate should also procure sufficient knowledge and skills needed to perform efficient practice management.
